All Ottawa County Parks rules & regulations are in effect on park property
Composed of gently rolling open fields, steeply sloped stream corridors, and historical remnants from previous uses, the 229-acre Eastmanville Farm was originally acquired in 1886 as Ottawa County's "poor farm" to provide housing and work for indigent residents. Known until recently as Community Haven, the facility provided services for needy residents until the late 1990s. In April 2004, the Ottawa County Board of Commissioners approved a request by the parks commission to designate this property along with its 1,367 feet of Grand River shoreline for park use.

In 2006, Ottawa County Parks prepared a master plan for the site proposing four distinct but complementary uses including: educational farm facilities featuring agricultural education for the public and school groups; equestrian trails and related facilities; small and large group picnic facilities; and Grand River waterfront facilities with small boat access, fishing and related activities. The name of the property was changed to Eastmanville Farm in 2007 to better reflect these future uses, and parts of the plan were implemented.

Equestrian facilities including parking, trails, restroom and other support facilities were completed in 2008 with additional trails constructed in 2012. The early 20th-century barn has been stabilized and painted, and a historic cemetery restored. Further information about the history of the site has been highlighted at the Memory Grove plaza near the main entrance and at the historic cemetery located about a one-half mile walk from this location. Agricultural education is promoted through the West Michigan Agricultural Education Center, a partnering non-profit organization.
